CHARGE OF THE MINITGOMERT GUARD.

Col. Mulligen immediately brought his gune to bear on the building, and ordered a cherge to capture the prisoners and remove the wounded. He called on a company of the Thirteenth Misseuri Ragiment to follow him, but they declined. He then sprang upon the outworks, sword in hand, and called to the Montgomery Guarda. They swarmed over the embankment at the first word of command, and with terrific shonts dashed efter their young commander. With e rush like the whirlwind they stormed up the ascent which led to the bospital building, and hurled their whole force against its doors. These slight barriers gave wey, and with resistless fury the hercic band threw thomselves upon the enemy, driving them before the beyonet like chaff on the antumn wind. Onward they went until the building was cleared, and the enemy were driven far down the decent on the other side, in dire confusion at the force charge of the Montgomeries. With wild shouts of triumph the brave band answered the cheare of their comrades within the intrenchments, and then hastily prepared to remove the side and wounded. The enemy rallied by tha time they were nearly ready to move, and charged up the hill by thousands. A fierca volley caused them to recoil for a moment, but the masses behind pushed the leaders up the skips, and they pured the ough the doors from which they had so recently leen ejected in numbers so great as to fairly overwhelm the heroic defenders. The Guards retired before them, and troke for the intrenchments. A murderone volley sused them to retire the for them, and troke for the intrenchments. A murderone volley was pured in upon them during the retreat, which killed a number and inflected the greatest loss that was austained during the charge. The wounded remained in the hands of the enemy, as well as the eurgeon and priest.

long into the trench. Falling upon the enemy with a ferce which prostrated them to the earth, they harded them over the embankment, end felrly cleared the disch, as well as the cutside ab pa for a long way downwest. The two guns were captured and the colors fell a pray to the victorious Irishman. The enemy, seeing the danger of losing the rettillery, rallid and charged up twithe breastworks again. The enemy removed them to a more cautions distance, and neither party occupied the Home Guard works after that. in this latitude. The weather is clear and pleas-of the straits the men were in.

Col. MULLIGAN'S BRAVERY.

Col. Mulligan now exerted Linnelf to the utmost to infuse the soldiers with the heroic forbearance which enineted his own breast. He drank no more water than the rest, but endured the pangs of thirst with them. He was draesed in an old green jacket, and, without en insignis of office about him except list trusty sword, he stalked here and there, regardless of danger, exposed to the hottest tire, and conseleesly imploring the men to keep their courage up. He had no hope of victory, but his hrave spirit ravoiled at the idea of surrender. He disdained to welk in the trenches, where safety was sure, but trod the high ground in the rear, where the bullets fisw like heilstones, heedless of the entreaties of the soldiers, who followed his manly form with their wordering eves, and sent up shours of exclamation at his noble daring. Through ell this be was coul end determined. Not a hreath of excitament passed his lips, and his words were those which appealed to the understanding of every man under his command. He was constantly under motion, cossing clong the intrenchments from end to end, with commands and injunctions to all whom he met, and displaying e caim, imposing contidence in his bearing which was worth the strangth of a housing unen in that trying heur. Not wonder that his soldiers worshipped him, and were narved to noble deeds of daving and endurance.

The enemy tired hot shot at the college building, and sel it on tire a number of times. The provisions were stored within it, and the whole of force were compelled to use their exertions in removing them and extinguishing the flames. A diag of trace came in at 8 octock with propositions to ellow time to remove the dead and bury them. The corditions were accepted, and a number of times. The provisions were stored within it hard the whole of octock, when the camonading opened again with full vigor.

The corditions were accepted, and a number of time should be a color of the hill. The truce lasted until 12 COL. MULLICAN'S BRAVERY.

At this juncture our men discovered, with no little dismov, an engi e of war which was being brought to bear upon them, threatening the very consequences which they dreeded most—a safe approach for the en my, and an ultimate charge in force over the intrenchments. The retels presented a strong breas work of hemp bales, which appeared like a moving barrier, impenetralla to bullets or cannon shot, and swarming with men in the rear. It was esout twenty rods in length, and the height of two bales of hemp. The bales were placed with the ends from gour fortificating, affording a thickness of cheut six feet. The east side, where the first grand charge was made, seemed to be the main point of attack. Another charge was made at this point soon afterward, which was not in so great free as the first, and we more easily repulsed. A deadly volley was poured into them, and they broke in disorder and retreated, carrying off a gnn which had been planted on side of the interechments. Colonel Marshall's exalty was called out, and rallied at the word of command, dashing off in pursuit at a tremendous pace. They thundered down upon the retreating rehels, and restlered them in every direction without a show of resistance. The gun was retaken, end brought hack amid cheers and cries of exultation.

THE SITUATION.

The defence up to this point had been meintained with the greatest obstinecy, and the reliefs had not gained any decided advantage, but they were gradually clessing in and surrounding the beleaguered garrison at close quarters. The formid the breastwork of hemp bales was in motion, with its concasted the usands lucking in safety, and weiting for the moment to charge. The words swarmed with men, and every hill teemed with rifemen, while in tree tups were alive with sharp shooters, who picked off our men continually. The relief entitlery occupied positions in several places which continued det the loterior White led with the Shields Guards, numbering 200 gallant Irishmen. Our soldiers watched there eagerly as they aprang over the embankmente and rushed upon the nearest body of robels who steed waiting for them in conscious strangth With hrave hurrabs they dashed down the slop col. MELLIGAN SECOND CHARGE.

The Home Guards occupied a trench several rode in advance of the other fortifications. They did some axecution, but were not particularly efficient. Their fire, however, a trected the attention of the enemy, and a large bedy of men were detached to take the position. They charged up the hill in good style, and reemed full of eager-ness and determination. The Home Gnards, in dismay at their prospects, delivered a week volley, and there prospects, delivered a week volley, and them brought my two cannen, which they brought have line to the main internchiments on a full run. The enemy took preservious and planted a secresion fleg, and then brought my two cannen, which they brought have line to the on the internchiments. I have the position of the man for a charge. About two hundred rallied at his cry and dashed over the embankments. He led with a shoot, his aword waving bigh in the air, and his tail form springing over the ground like an antelops. The men preced on with mad shoots, and fairly precipitated themselves head-sighting a 6 pounder, turned his gnn noon it end blew it into atoms, after which is treiled his piece upon the position, and threatened to sweep the man into eternity who dared to raise it agair. The Home Guards deserted their trenches at the moir of Colonel Becker, and rushed into their inner fortification, where they again ralsed the white flag, and kept it llying. Immediately upon this the enemy ceased firing, and the garrison was thrown into the greetest confusion. Word was passed around their surrender had been made, and the men! If their trenches in disorder to execution the truth. Consternation reigned in all directions, Colonel Mulligan being on the opposite eide, and nebody present to essume control. Word was sent to him, and he ordered the flag down, but the Captalles, who by this time realized their true position, and saw nothing but death or surrender before them, implored him to save the men. In the mean time, the themp breastworks had been moved up under the cover of the general confus on, until but a few yards separated them from the intrenchments. The forces outside advanced, and everything indicated that the moment had arrived when the grand assault was to be made. Certain destruction menac d the brave garrison, and but e few brief moments were required to consummate it. In this emergacy the breve commander ordered his men to law down their arms, and a messenger was despatched outside with a flag of truce. Gen. Price, Gen. Rains, and the relied Governor, Jackson, came inside of the intrenchments, and demanded an unconditional surrender.

After the surrender, General Price approached

TO THE PEOPLE OF KENTUCKY.

I have been authorized to raise a regiment of infantry to be mustered into the service of the United States end to form e part of the force under the commard of General Robert Anderson.

Compenies will be received from any part of the State,

Each company will be composed of not less then 94 nor mora than 101 men, rank and file, and will elect their own officers.

The cost of trensportation to the place of rendeavous (which will be hereafter designated) as well es the cost of subsisting the troops previous to their being mustered into the service, will be paid by the Government. Lieutenant-Colonel, Major, and other regimental officers, will be selected in due time. The regiment will be supplied with good erms.

No written anthority is necessary to raise companies. Let individuals organize them as repidity as possible and report to me tha names of the officers selected by the respective companies. Address me et Loniaville, Kentucky.

And now I appeal to my fellow-Kentuckians to come forward and enroll themselves for service. Their invaded State appeals to them. Their foully-wronged and deeply-insperilled conntry appeals to them. All that is meet glorious in human government is now at stake, and every true man should come to the rescue.

The time, fellow-citizens, has come, when even the unpatriotic and the sellish should hasten to take up erms for the common defence of their State and country. Every consideration of an injection, all our avercations of whatever character, all our possessions of every description, become valueless. To save ourselves and our State and our country from degredation and shame, we must rally now where the National tlag invites us. Come, then, let usgird up the whole strength of our bodies and souls for the conflict, and may the God of Battles guide home every blow we strike. For one, I am unwilling to see the people of my native State overrun and conquered by men claiming to he citizens of a foreign government. I cannot he indifferent to the issue which an After the surrender, General Price approached Col. Kentuckians: Confederate troops under the plea of military necessity have taken possession of your soil, torn up your railroads, blown up lecks, burned bridges, insulted your citizens, and underteke to give a protectorate, by making a false assumption that your Legislature is misrepresenting your will. Are your willing to submit to these outrage? It so, the spirit that burned in the bosoms of your fathere has hurned out; you are slaves and wortby to be slaves. But I know that the same spirit that won the dark and bloody land and made our fathers victorious on many a hard-fought battle-field still animates the bosoms of their sons, and that spirit will not rest until the last armed foe is driven ignominionly from our soil. Let us then, as one men, rise up end repel the luvader. By the euthority and for the serve as of the United States, I propose to organize in Kentucky e regiment of infantry to serve three years or during the war, to consist of ten companies, each company to contain not less than eighty-four, nor more than oue hundred and four rark and file. The Captains and Lieutenants are to be elected by the companies respectively.

Captains of companies will report to me, as soon es possible, during the seed in of the Legislatur, at the Capitol Hotel, Frankfort. After the adjointment, at Westport, Oldham county, Kransportation to the pint of rendezvous will be farnished. No company must be resulved from its point of organization until ordered into camp. Gen. Fremont preserves strict silence, but he is said to be actively engaged in obtaining the exact number of troops he can command, and organizing plans for the enproaching engagement, upon the suce as or failure of which he is to rest his reputation and win or lose his all. Every day an increased interest is felt in the approaching battle, for it is generally supposed that it will decide the fate of Missouri.

Some persons nummer at the delay, but. Gen. Fremont is determined to have everything ready before he advances, and not to strike a blow before he advances, and not to strike a blow before he believes it will be effective.
